DDS/BROKER

ASK THE BROKER

Do different types of practices require different types of negotiations?

Yes! This is an interesting question, especially in California. We are a melting pot of diverse cultures. The licensed dentists and enrollment in our dental schools reflect this fact. Both buyers and sellers would be wise to understand the different culturally-based negotiating tactics they might encounter. For instance, it is common in some cultures to automatically and immediately offer approximately 50% of the asking price to start the negotiations. Some sellers may be so offended that they might not even respond to that type of an offer. Other cultures start with a full price offer, even sign all the paperwork and get close to the finish line, and then reduce their offer for a perceived reason that something was not to their expectations. Another culture may be extremely polite and excited about the practice, repeatedly spending time with the seller reviewing all the details, but never make a formal offer until after a great deal of work and time has been invested, only to make an offer well below the asking price.

My advice to the sellers is to be cognizant of the differing cultural norms. That is easy for me to say but hard for me to do, even after completing hundreds of negotiations. While I understand that hot markets with a desirable practice demand quick decisions, I still believe that a written agreement carries weight and expectations, unless something very significant is discovered that was not represented accurately in the beginning. Once time, effort and money have been spent trying to finalize the details of the transaction, there is a reasonable expectation that the purchase price will not be changed.

My advice to the buyers is to understand that in most cases, goodwill is the greatest part of the asset you are purchasing. It is then best if your offer matches the cultural expectation of the seller, as to not damage the eventual goodwill by engaging in a 'tough' negotiation. Every seller expects some negotiation, but eventually, how it is done will affect the tone of the transaction. Creating ill-will during the negotiations may reflect negatively in the transition with the patients and staff. Of course, there are some practices where this relationship with the owner may not matter, but those are usually the exception, even in a PPO driven practice.

A good "back-and-forth" negotiation can solidify value for both the buyer and the seller in the process. However, the buyer must beware of harming the transfer of the goodwill if the negotiations are not handled properly. This includes properly managing the consultants and attorneys the buyer chooses to help in the transition.

Cecilia Chen, Attorney
Super Lawyer 2014
Nominated by Peers

"I thought all attorneys were the same. But after seeing the frustration from the seller because of her lawyers, I knew that I have someone special on my side. Cecilia was thorough, efficient, and worked with my budget."

Jack W. Chan, DDS

"Cecilia represented me in the sale of my dental practice to my existing partner. She was very professional, thorough and easy to communicate with. The other attorney was contentious and uninformed about complex insurance issues and made no effort to preserve goodwill. Cecilia is very knowledgeable in dental practice law, particularly when it comes to partnership buyouts and practice acquisition. She went the extra mile to try and ensure that my interests were protected."

Richard Lindsay, DMD

"Her fees are very competitive and reasonable. In fact, her fees were entirely covered with a 3-months rent abatement that she had went out of her way to negotiate for me in a lease assignment."

D. Aminov, DMD

"When I decided to sell my ortho practice, I sought the services of a large company. Over the 12-month contract, I had one buyer visit. Word was out. It had a devastating effect on my bottom line. Fortunately, I found Ray and Edna Irving! When I finally sold, I choose between two good offers. My regret was the time and money lost with the other guys."

"When I signed the Listing on June 1st, Ray stated he would have the practice sold by Labor Day. The sale was concluded on Sept 1st, two days before Labor Day. Wow!"

"I will always remember your statement when I questioned your contract being only four months. You stated: 'If I can't sell your practice in that time, you should get someone else.' Well, you did with time to spare!"

"Before I called Ray, I had a listing with another prominent Broker. After eleven months without a sale, I called Ray. He sold it in about a month! Would I recommend Ray? Yes!"
